JetBlue and Shell Aviation Announce Agreement Bringing New Supply of SAF to LAX

JetBlue and Shell Aviation announced a new collaboration bringing additional supply of sustainable aviation fuel (SAF) to Los Angeles International Airport (LAX), targeting commencement of delivery in the first half of 2023. Within the terms of the agreement, JetBlue is expected to take delivery of 10,000,000 gallons of blended SAF at LAX over the next two years and an option to purchase up to 5,000,000 gallons more in the third year, either at LAX or other airports in JetBlue's network.

Supporting and growing SAF availability is critical to reaching larger airline industry goals and JetBlue's own goal to reach net zero by 2040, 10 years earlier than industry targets. This along with JetBlue's other existing sustainability commitments will apply to the airline's planned integration of Spirit Airlines into its operation. JetBlue will continue to do its part to encourage a diverse and competitive SAF market and encourage the build-up of available supply and the economies of scale needed for SAF prices to compete with traditional fuel sources.

Business Traveler Names JetBlue's Mint Wine List as a Winner

JetBlue's Mint wine list recently won a silver medal in Business Traveller's Cellars in the Sky Awards 2022 for best presented wine list. JetBlue is so proud of their Mint product, including their sommelier-curated wines. In the past year, JetBlue has collected a number of impressive awards, including APEX Passenger Choice Awards Best Food & Beverage in North America (June 2022). And more broadly speaking, Mint continues to win us rave reviews, from J.D. Power to The Points Guy.
